Orlando Public Library hosts Men Painting Women exhibit

From July 1 through August 31 the Orlando Public Library hosts Men Painting Women, an art exhibit featuring the works of five Florida male artists whose work mainly focuses on the female form. Throughout history, women have played an important role in some of the most important male artist's paintings. In this exhibit, the works of these featured artists continue this celebration of women, creating a narrative of women from different perspectives, both artistically and intellectually.

"Most of the important influencers in my life have been women," says Robert Shrik, one of the artists featured in the exhibit. "My paintings of women celebrate the qualities I have learned from these wonderful women."

Other artists included in the exhibit are Leonardo Montoya, Weldon Ryan, Herbie Martin and Wilson Romero. Men Painting Women comes to Orlando Public Library, 101 E. Central Blvd., from July 1 through August 31.
